Grassland Oregon Introduces Online Resource for Novel Seed Solutions

Salem, OR – January 30, 2014 – Grassland Oregon has launched a dramatically redesigned site which embodies its forward-thinking vision and commitment to the growing needs of today’s seed industry professionals

The landing page is designed as a portal to keep visitors engaged and up-to-date with a wide variety of factors that affect the seed industry. Included are daily updates on commodities futures, industry news, local weather, and the ability to choose a language of preference for viewing.

The site provides technical, yet easy to understand, information and research data on cover crop, turf, and forage seed products. It also includes timely blog entries, research updates, an industry dictionary of terms and much more. ‘We are continually innovating and fine-tuning our products and services to meet the needs of seed industry professionals’ stated Risa DeMasi, Partner. ‘The new site was the natural next step in our philosophy of providing novel solutions for growing concerns’.

Ongoing changes and expansions to the site are expected regularly as science, research, and our changing world bring new opportunities and challenges.
